 Philosophy

Calsense is a California based company that designs and manufactures computerized irrigation controllers used for water conservation and water management. Each field unit is a powerful stand-alone computer that can do more than some central systems available in today's irrigation market. Our philosophy is to succeed at placing innovative, state-of-the-art technology in the hands of landscape maintenance personnel, so that water, labor, and time management become a reality.

Calsense specializes in water management systems that are easy to use and provides to our customers the strongest after-the-sale factory training and field service program available in the irrigation industry today. Calsense responds quickly to customer needs and engineers products to reflect those needs. It is our consistent hands-on education in the field, with specialized quality products that work, that produces the success Calsense customers' experience. Please contact a Calsense customer and listen to their feedback and experience. Our continued growth and success is based on their success!

 Service

Calsense has understood the need to provide hands-on field training upon product installation. The purchase price of our product includes this service. The Calsense technical support and education training program includes 6 on site field visits during the first year of installation by one of our professional field service technicians. Our trained technicians help maintenance personnel learn the complete operations of all Calsense products, including our central computer software called Command Center.

For service or repair, please call (760) 438-0525 or (800) 572-8608 Monday through Friday, between 8:00am and 5:00pm Pacific Standard Time.
